"The Fire-Breather"

- 1. ambitious (am-BISH-uhs) adjective; An ambitious person has a strong wish or determination to be rich, successful, and/or powerful. An ambitious plan or idea requires a great deal of effort and skill to achieve. If Jake plans to bake a cake, play soccer, read a novel, paint his room, and write an essay on Saturday, you could say that his plans are ambitious.
- 2. ingenious (in-JEEN-yuhs) adjective; Ingenious means "clever and original." Ingenious can be used to describe an idea (as in "What an ingenious solution!"), a thing (as in "What an ingenious app!"), or a person (as in "My science teacher is ingenious!").
- 3. insatiable (in-SAY-shuh-buhl) adjective; Insatiable means "impossible to satisfy" or "always wanting more." If you have insatiable hunger, no matter how much you eat, you still don't feel full. If you have an insatiable desire for knowledge, no matter how much you learn, you still want to learn more.
- 4. menace (MEN-is) noun or verb; A menace is someone or something that threatens to cause harm. A bully is a menace to other kids he wants to pick on. Air pollution is a menace to our health.

As a verb, menace means "to threaten." If a cat is swiping at every dog that walks by, the cat is menacing the dogs in the neighborhood.
- 5. promotion (pruh-MOH-shuhn) noun; If you get a promotion at work, you are moved into a job of higher rank—a position with greater responsibility, importance, or status. A promotion usually comes with a pay raise. Promotion can also refer to an action to make people aware of something and increase its popularity or sales. A store, for example, might run a promotion on jeans.
- 6. reluctant (ree-LUHK-tuhnt) adjective; If you are reluctant to do something, you are not eager to do it. You are feeling or showing hesitation or an unwillingness. state of over-the-top happiness.
